| FRED NEIL | 38 MACDOUGAL | * 2020 Record Store Day / B.F. Exclusive Release * Limited Edition of 1000, pressed at Third Man on Clear Vinyl * Deluxe Stoughton tip-on jacket featuring previously unseen photos of fRed Neil. * LP-size insert featuring notes by Fred's son, Chris, and Numbered photograph * A previously unreleased Fred Neil performance at the height of his powers - and featuring two unheard songs is no less than an historic event! Mastertone Studios, NYC,1965...Amidst mounting friction with producer Paul Rothchild, Fred Neil walks out on the unfinished sessions for what was to be his debut album, "Bleecker & MacDougal". Fearing he wouldn't return to the studio, his friend and guitar player, Peter Childs, invited him down to the Greenwich Village apartment he shared with John Sebastian, at 38 MacDougal. According to Childs, "the best chance to get Freddie back wouldn't be to try to persuade him verbally, but to get him over to the apartment for a bit of music-making". What transpired on that afternoon was a legendary singer-songwriter and his long-time accompanist making music for the pure joy of it, a one-of-a-kind private performance, captured on Ampex reel to reel, and stored for over fifty years! The previously unreleased recordings contained on "38 MacDougal" were beautifully detailed in Peter Lee Neff's 2018 Fred Neil biography, "That's The Bag I'm In". Fred and Peter perform songs that would later wind up on "Bleecker & MacDougal"("Travellin' Shoes", "Country Boy", "Gone Again", "Candy Man", "Little Bit Of Rain"), a definitive "Sweet Cocaine", and two PD songs that don't appear on any other Fred Neil album; the traditional folk song, "Once I Had A Sweetheart", and the African-American spiritual, "Blind Man Standing By The Road And Crying". The latter is our personal favorite, and despite the biography mentioning the song cutting off before it ends, Delmore's tape magically contained the complete performance in all its glory. Fred takes the song on a personal and deep journey, and Peter adds the most perfect musical touches. It's also the first appearance on a Fred Neil record of one of the many Spiritual songs that were |

| Masta Ace & Marco Polo | A Breukelen Story (Instrumentals)(BF RSD20) | Aus einem zufälligen Treffen und einer Beat-CD entstand 'A Breukelen Story', eine gemeinsame Veröffentlichung zwischen dem ehrwürdigen Veteranen Masta Ace und dem unglaublich detaillierten und produktiven Produzenten Marco Polo. 14 Tracks mit ausgeprägten Gästen (Pharoahe Monch in „The Fight Song“ zum Beispiel). | Curtis Knight & The Squires | The PPX Sessions Volume 2 | (LP, brown vinyl,, numbered, 150 gram) o Business: Curtis Knight & The Squires -The PPX Sessions Volume 2 continues the documentation of Jimi Hendrix's pre-Experience sideman work with the Harlem-based R&B combo. These 12 recordings were captured at Studio 76 in 1965 [as well as two controversial sessions in July and August 1967] and offer a fascinating glimpse of Hendrix's genius in the years before—and during—his early success. It includes the 1965 demo of the first known Hendrix composition ("Working All Day") and shiver-inducing guitar playing that hint at the genius to come. While not a Jimi Hendrix album the music is now under the control of Experience Hendrix, and thanks to them has been lovingly restored by legendary engineer Eddie Kramer for us to enjoy in their proper historical context in a numbered release edition. |
| David Gilmour | Yes I Have Ghosts | His first new song, from David Gilmour in five years and features the voice and harp playing of his daughter Romany. The inspiration for the track was Polly Samson's new novel 'A Theatre for Dreamers'. Of 'Yes, I Have Ghosts' Gilmour says "I was working on this song just as we went in to lockdown and had to cancel a session with backing singers but, as it turned out, the solution was right here and I couldn't be happier with the way Romany's voice blends with mine and her beautiful harp playing has been another revelation." |
